LESLIE, SIR JOHN, MATHEMATICIAN

Sir John Leslie was appointed professor of mathematics in Edinburgh University in 1805. His election was opposed by the presbytery of Edinburgh, which brought a charge of unorthodoxy against him. A fierce war of pamphlets resulted, the titles of the greater part of which are here noted.

Brewster, Sir David. An examination of the letter addressed to Principal Hill, on the case of Mr. Leslie, in a letter to [Andrew Thomson] its anonymous author. With remarks on Mr. Stewart's postscript, and Mr. Playfair's pamphlet. By a calm observer [Sir David Brewster]. Edinburgh: Mundell & Son, 1806. 1 p.l., 86 p. 8°. STH p.v.4

— — (In: Tracts, historical and philosophical... respecting the election of Mr. Leslie to the professorship of mathematics in that university. Edinburgh, 1806. 8°. v. 2.)

STH p.v.2

Brown, Thomas. An examination of some remarks in the Reply of Dr. John Inglis to Professor Playfair. Edinburgh: Mundell, Doig, & Stevenson, 1806. 1 p.l., 66 p. (In: Tracts, historical and philosophical... respecting the election of Mr. Leslie to the professorship of mathematics in that [Edinburgh] University. Edinburgh, 1806. 8°. v. 2.)

The work embraces the earliest known representation, in full heraldic blazonry, of nearly seven hundred coats of arms, of the ancient nobility and old landed families of Scotland.

The arms have been reproduced in facsimile of the originals from heraldic manuscripts dating from the year 1369, in the reign of David the Second, to that of 1678, in the reign of Charles the Second.

The earliest manuscript made use of in the work is the Gelre manuscript, of the year 1369, preserved in the Bibliothèque Royale at Brussels. The Scottish arms in this manuscript will be found very faithfully represented. The next most ancient manuscript wherein Scottish arms are found is the Armorial of Gilles de Berry, king of arms, in the year 1460, preserved in the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris. All the other known manuscripts lent for the purpose of making this collection complete, by the earl of Crawford and Balcarres, the earl of Kinross, Macleod of Macleod and C. M. Kerr, and those in the Heralds' College, London, the British Museum, the Advocates' Library, the Lyon Office, Edinburgh, and the Library of the University of Edinburgh, have been examined, and the coats selected from them faithfully reproduced.

Macpherson, Sir Æneas, of Invereshie. The loyal dissuasive and other papers concerning the affairs of clan Chattan; by Sir Æ. Macpherson. Edited, with notes and introduction, from the originals at Cluny Castle, by the Rev. A. D. Murdoch. Edinburgh: T. & A. Constable, 1902. civ, 254 p., 1 fac., 1 port. 8°. (Scottish History Society. Publications. v. 41.) CPA

The papers in this volume throw much light on the characters and events of the Revolution of 1688 as it affected Scotland. The introduction deals with the history of clan Chattan, but the editor's statements on some points are open to question. The portrait is that of Andrew Macpherson of Cluny, 1661.

Newes from Scotland, declaring the damnable life of Doctor Fian a notable sorcerer, who was burned at Edenbrough, in Januarie last 1591; which doctor was register to the Deuill, that sundrie times preached at North Barricke Kirke to a number of notorious Witches; with the true examinations of the said doctor and Witches, as they uttered them in the presence of the Scottish king: discovering how they pretended to bewitch and drowne his majestie in the sea, comming from Denmark; with such other wonderfull matters, as the like hath not bin heard at anie time. Published according to the Scottish coppie. [At London:] Printed for William Wright. (In: Ancient criminal trials in Scotland... Edinburgh, 1833. 4°. v. 1, p. 213-223.) CP

The authorship of this blood-curdling tract has been doubtfully attributed to Rev. James Carmichael, minister of Haddington (1568-1628). Notwithstanding the statement that this edition was "published according to the Scottish coppie" it is more probable that Wright's was the first edition. Reprinted in C. K. Sharpe's Historical account of witchcraft in Scotland, p. 55-72.

This is really the second series of the ballads collected by Peter Buchan, which was advertised in 1834 as in preparation for publication, but did not appear. The manuscript was sold to the Percy Society who published the above selection from it for their members. For some reason or other the editor did not think it worth while to explain the source of his ballads.

The first edition of this work was suppressed immediately on publication in consequence of some libellous remarks in it on Lord Hermand. The libellous matter was contained on p. 120 of v. 2, and the re-setting is noticeable in the so-called 2. ed. from line 6 of p. 119 to line 10 of p. 122. In copies of the "2. ed." in the original boards the pasting in of the new title-page can be observed.

The work was written when Lockhart was in his twenty-fifth year.

The author of this version, a lady of Perth, requested one of the ministers of that town to examine and correct the ms. Hoping to dissuade her from the publication, he returned it after keeping it some time, saying that he was incapable of improving it. This, however, she understood to mean that it was so faultless as to need no emendation; and she accordingly sent it to Edinburgh to be printed; but as it did not gain the approbation of the readers, the impression was bought up by a friend, and a copy could not afterwards be procured.
